

Engineers' Day

50 events highlighting the important role of engineers in achieving the Sustainable Development Goals. Since 2018, Switzerland has celebrated its engineers and their achievements on Engineers' Day.

From talks with engineers to virtual tours of construction sites, many exciting insights into the engineering profession will be given, challenges highlighted and opinions expressed on what the future could look like. One focus is the discussion about the sustainable development of our society and the important role of engineers in achieving the Sustainable Development Goals of the UN Agenda 2030.
